RISK DISCLOSURE

National Futures Association (NFA) guidelines require that we inform our students of the risks associated with trading currencies.

All trade ideas and included information in this and all SolomonFX Training courses are intended as educational material to assist you in planning your own trades. Trading foreign exchange on margin carries a high level of risk, and may not be suitable for all investors. The high degree of leverage can work against you as well as for you. Before deciding to invest in foreign exchange you should carefully consider your investment objectives, level of experience, and risk appetite.

The student should be aware that SolomonFX does neither promise or guarantee that a student will in fact become a profitable trader with any product. Past performance is not indicative of future results. The possibility exists that you could sustain a loss of some or all of your initial investment and you should therefore not trade any monies that you cannot afford to lose. You should be aware of all the risks associated with foreign exchange trading, and seek advice from an independent financial advisor if you have any doubts.
